Quinine and Compound Cathartle Pitls Lead a Formidable List. Realthy Persons May Run the Risk, But Those With Pulmocary Troubles Should Avoid Aluska.

Coleago, Aug. 14.-Dr. A. P. O'Brien, of this city, gives the following advice to persons afflicted with the Kiondike gold

To give absolutely safe medical advice on the subject of one who should and who should not go to the Klondike, is a bard task. There is much exaggeration current about the risks involved in the journey. The common talk about the fatal effects of arotic cold may be discounted largely Man especially man reared in the tem perale more -bus the power of assimilating bir self with charactic changes more than any other manuful. Changes from bot to cold, from moist to dry, from high alti-tudes to sencoast, and the reverse are

Snow and ke are not in themselves by any means injurious to the physical health of the average native of the temperate zone. They may be dis agreeable but they are not unbraithful unless the soil of the district Where they occur is of a rature to retain dampness Clays are bed in this respect; gravelly soft are safe.

Scientific records have Well established that the average duration of human life is greater in proportion as the residence is advanced from the equator toward the There are exceptions, of course but only such as prove the general rule. There is more risk of disease by far in a veryage to India or Panama than in one to Bering Straits.
(limate, however is not the only thing to be considered When there is question, in a medical sense, of the risks of a distant and laborious expedition, undertaken by a multitude of persons widely differing, as all multitudes must, in the capacity of inhydoals for standing hardship and priva tions.

To the weak, or those disposed to special altments, conditions which are only in vissirating to the man in average bealth are often absolutely fatal. Weak hearts and weak lungs cannot face Northern blasts or temperatures below zero. Rheumatism and its kindred affections are equally ill fitted for such tests. Nor are such per whether young or old, as have been long accustomed to purely sedentary or capations of to lives of case and luxury, physically fitted for the bardships of the dike. In the former the vital and redstive powers have never been developed in the latter they have been sapped. Weak eyes would be severely tested by the glare of a show covered land, and blind-ness is but one of the dangers to be feared by arctic exploters.

In brief, I would say that persons subect to troubles of the heart, throat or lungs sould stay away from the Klondike. Phy sioni exhaustion, colds, scurvy, rheumagers to be apprehended on the trip from a medical standpoint. For the healthy in ther respects than those mentioned there no more danger to be dreaded than in any ordinary change of residence. Alaska s not more unbealthful in fiself than Illinois. Norway or the northern parts of Scot land. Only those that are able to bear hardships should face them, but us far as hygicus conditions po, there need be no special appreheasion on the score of Alaska. a conclusion I would say to those of weak lungs and weak hearts, and sedentary people generally, stay at home. Recreation at Chapel Point.

That a Chapel Point day is a merry one has become a fixed fact with any number of folks. This is plainly shown by the boat loads of guests that take advantage of each trip made by the River Queen. But there's nothing surprising about the popularity of the place. There is everything there that can be found at any of the other reserves and a rowd many at the other resorts, and a good many at-tractions that others do not boast of. The sail alone is enjoyable enough to crowd the boat. The Point is fifty-five miles from town, and the run is made in about four hours. A cool delightful trip, where the scenery is pleusing to the eye, and the brackers confidence. eye, and the breezes comforting. Once on the ground and the sport has only begun. No finer fishing and crabbing could be wished for than is found at Chapel Point, and the facilities for salt water bathing offered by the excellent beach tends to keep the Water fairly alive with tathers during the four hours the Queen lies at the wharf. Dinners may either be had in the cafe on the steamer or at the hotel. Excellent service at either place. The home trip at night is especially pleasureable.
